

FEMA Base Flood Elevation

The level that floodwaters are predicted to rise to during a 100-year (1% annual chance) storm. The water level is determined using existing land use conditions. The FEMA Base Flood Elevation is primarily used to determine flood insurance rates. In general terms, the higher the lowest floor is above the FEMA Base Flood Elevation, the lower the flood insurance rates.